Proyecto ProtegeMe Project Protect Me

March 10, we hosted a training event for 120 leaders with Carla Marroquin, the director of Proyecto ProtegeMe to launch a ministry to protect children and teens from human trafficking and abuse.

Debbie and I had the chance to present this project with Carla for two half-hour radio programs, to the National Bible College mission's classes, to Planet Kids leaders and then again for six hour workshop.

We plan to host Carla again later this year to begin the process of setting up special Alert Teams to present to schools, churches and community organizations.

Planet Kids

Planet Kids in worship in the renovated warehouse in Condado Naranjo, Mixco just outside of Guatemala City. Their original children's worship music is now available on iTunes and Amazon ... look for Alabando, Planet Kids.

One Way Guatemala literature

We've distributed more than 60,000 gospel tracks produced with the help of BGMC and LFTL. We believe our literature will be read by seven to ten different people. We plan on hosting 100+ outreaches in 2018.

Mission's Students

Recently we were able to speak to the mission's class in the Guatemalan Assemblies of God Bible College. They have a record number of young people preparing for world and domestic mission's.

More than ever latin-American young people are answering a call to go around the world. Guatemalan is only only receiving missionaries, but it is sending them.

Mission's Summit

It was a joy to be a part of the World Mission's Summit in Houston with more than 6150 registrants. We witnessed thousands of university students commit to giving at least one year to missions.

Church Mission's Convention

By the time this newsletter is in your hands we will have participated in at least six mission's conventions. Thank you to all the churches who work so hard on behalf of World Missions.

Speed the Light

We join Rodney Goodlett, DYD of Kentucky in expecting a banner year for Speed the Light. We are deeply grateful for students and leaders who sacrifice for missionaries. We enjoyed the chance to connect for this year's tour through Kentucky.
